Learning strategies in modern language courses for adult learners

(Grundtvig Trainingskurs Nr. DE-2012-1171-002)

TANDEM Hamburg invites you and the trainers of your institution to a one-week Teacher Training Course which will take place in our language institute in Hamburg city in January or April 2012. The course is aimed at European trainers and other experts in the field of further education for adults, especially for German as a foreign language, who want to update their knowledge about learning strategies.

The five-day Grundtvig Training Course will be held in our classrooms; it is to include theory input and practical transfers, sitting in on German classes, and three informative excursions in Hamburg.

It will be awarded with the Europass Mobility Certificate.

Course Content

The main objective of this further education course is to provide information about recent discussions in the field of learning strategies and to discuss and practise in what ways learning strategies could be integrated in modern language teaching.

Learning strategies, as for example mnemo techniques or the awareness of the students' own learner types, should enhance the learner to learn as efficiently as possible not only inside, but also outside the classroom in an autonomous way. Practical exercises, hands-on sessions and micro teachings form an important part of the course and will enable the participants to transfer their knowledge into their teaching in a creative way.
